Infectious Disease Emergency Leave Pay Taxable Income / Insurable Earnings

We have been in contact with the Provincial Government attempting to ascertain if the Infectious Disease Emergency Leave Pay (IDELP) is to be considered taxable income and considered insurable earnings.

To date we have not received any clarification.

Reviewing the Federal Canada Recovery Sick Benefit (CRSB) administered by Revenue Canada we know it is considered taxable income. As the CRSB is a cheque directly to the individual from Revenue Canada not the employer as in Ontario's IDELP it does not attract insurable earnings deductions.

We know payday is upon us and we will keep trying to get clarification as to IDELP being considered insurable earnings or not.

If anyone has received clarifying information please forward it to the CECCO office.

Thank you.
